Open Minds

February 17, 7 p.m. Animals as Entertainment

Open Minds discussion on Wednesday, February 17 will center on Animals as Entertainment, led by Donna Beaumont and Gail Devilbiss. Seaworld and Ringling Brothers Circus have been in the news recently as they respond to public concerns about the welfare of the animals in their shows. Animals are used as entertainment in many other settings, such as zoos, Busch Gardens, dog, cock, and bullfighting, in the movies and the rodeo. We will use video clips and other information to start the discussion.

The Social Justice Interest Group hosts the Open Minds discussion series on the third Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. at the fellowship building, to encourage exploration and discussion of social justice and related issues. The series is open to the public.

If you have a topic to discuss, concerning social justice, economic justice, environmental justice – or just being an informed citizen – please contact Donna or Vito.

Congratulations, Rev. Paul Oakley on Installation

On Saturday February 13th, the Reverend Paul Oakley will formally be installed as the settled minister of the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Waynesboro. It is customary to celebrate a formal service of installation at a time within the first year of a minister's settled ministry. The service has a similar format as an ordination, with visiting ministers and more ceremony that usually goes into an ordinary Sunday service. This recognizes in a more formal way the settled ministry of a new minister and gives the congregation the opportunity to mark the end of the arduous search process and to celebrate the presence of a minister they have now come to know.

MVUUF is grateful for Paul and Walter's years within our Fellowship, proud of Paul's installation in their new home, and congratulates them on this milestone of their journey.

Canned Food and Necessities Collection

In conjunction with the Souper Bowl of Caring service, in February the MVUUF Social Justice Interest Group will again collect items for Angels on Assignment Food Panty. In addition to food items, Angels on Assignment clients can always use toilet paper, paper towels, facial tissues, tooth paste, soap, laundry detergent, which the pantry does not receive very often. Any cleaning supplies, too, are greatly appreciated.

Among nonperishable food items especially canned vegetables, soups, spaghetti sauce, pasta, rice, cereal are needed, but all items are appreciated.

About the Red Tent Movement – by Debbie Czarnopys-White

Anita Diamant wrote the fiction novel, The Red Tent in 1997. From that fictional novel sprang what's now known as the Red Tent Movement. I highly recommend reading the novel or listening to the audiobook. Either would provide groundwork for this follow-on effort. An informational link provides a rich description of the sharing of the Red Tent: redtenttemplemovement.com/about/.

The Red Tent Movement is a journey for women to create the type of environment they want in order to feel safe, vulnerable but protected, and nourished. Some are talking, some are dancing, some have other themes, some remain open for new members to continue to join, and yet others close membership after a while feeling secure with the women they've been sharing themselves with. More than one Red Tent can exist at the same location, yet different times, allowing each group to create their own safe place.

I experienced The Red Tent Movement at the UU Women's Connection Fall Retreat at Racine, WI. The keynote speaker for the retreat was Dr. Isadora Leidenfrost and she showed her documentary film, "Things We Don't Talk About: Woman's Stories from the Red Tent." The film set the stage to reflect on many existing "Red Tents," how they originated and how the movement continues to expand. I was the doubter, not trusting the energy of the movement and the strength of women. Many had very positive experiences and I did as well. I would like to encourage women to explore this movement and see if one day we would like to try our own version, without long-term commitment or a fancy or colorful place to hold it in. Even outside the red tent, women continue to gain confidence to share, become vulnerable and, in the end, more trusting and trustworthy.

Tenth Anniversary

Please continue to stroll through your memories of ten years of MVUUF, to collect photos, flyers, orders-of-services and special items to include in the Tenth Anniversary display in the back of the Fellowship Hall. Send photos and jpgs to Gail DeVilbiss and Susan Trotter for the May 15 visual presentation.

In the bleak and cold winter,
We gather ourselves in
To light the fire to warm our spirits,
To kindle the flame of love and hope.
